MRS. WILLIAM D. PAGE DIES AT TUCSON, ARIZ.

Member of Old New York Family and Widow of Lawyer Saccumb's in 75th Year.

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TUCSON, Ariz., Dec. 22. — Mrs. Helen Grinnell Page, widow of William Drummond Page, New York lawyer, died at her Winter home, Clip-pe-cay, near Tucson, early this morning. Mrs. Page was injured on Oct. 16 in an automobile collision, but her physician said the accident had no bearing on her death, although she suffered severe shock, multiple contusions about the body and severe back injuries.

Mrs. Page, who was a socially prominent member of an old New York family, died in her seventy-fifth year. She was the former Helen J. Grinnell, daughter of the late George Blake and Helen Lansing Grinnell, Mayflower descendants, who for years lived in the Grinnell home at 156th Street and Broadway, in what was then Audubon Park. She was married to Mr. Drummond in 1882. He died in 1903.

Four years ago Mrs. Page built a residence in Tucson, spending her Winters there and her Summers in France. During the lifetime of her girlhood friend, the Marquise Charlotte Elizabeth de Sers, a cousin of the late Chauncey M. Depew, she was a frequent guest at the Marquise's château on her visits to France.

Mrs. Page is survived by two daughters, Laura Lansing Page, who resided with her, and Mrs. Sylvia Page Lilley of Watertown, Conn.; two sons, Donald Page of Orange, Conn., and Frank L. G. Page of Pelham Manor, N. Y.; a brother, George Bird Grinnell, editor, author and explorer, who lives at 238 East Fifteenth Street; a sister, Mrs. Laura Grinnell Martin of Huntington, L. I., and seven grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed, but the services will be held in the East. Burial will take place in Woodlawn Cemetery.
